WANDERERS ENTERTAIN AT GRANGE

The Wanderers Choral Group, led by Mrs. N. Hemingway, entertained at the regular meeting of Rochester Grange on Wednesday night. The choral group is from Mattapoisett and Mrs. Hemingway from Fairhaven. Pianist for the group was Paul Smith of Mattapoisett. Community singing was enjoyed by all present.

State Deputy Joseph Bradford of South Middleboro; Alphonse Spirlet, master of South Middleboro Grange; and Herbert Hobart, master of Brockton Grange, were escorted to the master's station and spoke briefly.

Lecturer's march prizes were won by Mrs. Edward Bowen and Miss H. Ellen Hartley. Miss Lucille Ouellette gave a report on the lecturer's conference which she attended recently in Rhode Island. George St. Martin was selected for assistant steward.

State Deputy Gilbert Collins and his suite will install the newly elected officers on October 11th.

Master Paul Ouellette was presented a gift of money from the members. He will leave this month for Fort Bragg, North Carolina to serve in the Army.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clifford Hedges and Mrs. Charles Tuttle.

Visitors were present from Nantucket, Brockton, Wamsutta, Smith Mills, Acushnet and several non-members.

Members of the Grange donated thirty dish towels for the use of the Grange kitchen.

The tests serve as a guide in helping the Congressman to select those most qualified for entrance into the military academies.

In 1962 Congressman Keith will have two principal appointments to the U. S. Naval Academy, 11 nominations for one appointment to the U. S. Air Force Academy and 10 nominations to the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy (these nominees will have to compete for the State's quota of 9 vacancies). Keith will have no vacancies to the U. S. Military Academy in 1962, but urged all young men interested in West Point to contact Senators Saltonstall and Smith.

Applicants must be not less than 17 and must not have reached the age of 22 by July 1, 1962, the academy entrance date. They must be from the Ninth District, which includes the counties of Barnstable, Dukes and Nantucket; Plymouth County with the exception of Brockton; and, in Bristol County the City of New Bedford and the Towns of Acushnet, Dartmouth, Fairhaven and Westport and Ward Six in Fall River; also the Town of Cohasset in Norfolk County.

ROCHESTER LEAGUE AT BOWL-MOR ALLEYS

Robert Jefferson hit 380 for high 3 and led the Rounseville Saw Mill to a 2 to 1 win over Herb's T.V. Allan Hartley was high for Herb's with 325.

The Hartley Saw Mill took 3 from Lloyd's Market. Henry Hartley hit 151 for a new high single and went 375 for the Mill. Ed Lawrence's 341 led the Market team.

Although Gibb's Dairy won 3 points from Hiller's Garage it was the closest match of the night. High men were S. Lawrence 332 for Gibbs and K. Clarke 361 for Hiller.

Things were a "Bed of Roses" for Tuck Hartley as he led his team with 358 to take 2 points from D. Mahoney & Sons. L. Holmes bowled 356 for the losers.

CAPE COD NATIONAL SEASHORE

Congressman Hastings Keith announced recently that because of numerous inquiries to his office and general public interest, he has had a map of the Cape Cod National Seashore reprinted for distribution.

Keith, who sponsored legislation creating the National Seashore, said he has a supply of the maps available and will be happy to send them, free of charge, to anyone who writes his Washington office. The address is Room 1317, New House Office Building, Washington 25, D. C.

Showing the general boundary of the Seashore, main highways and towns and villages on the Lower Cape, the 9 by 14-inch map offered by the Congressman is a reproduction of an official National Park Service map released shortly after President Kennedy signed the Seashore bill last month.

REPORT TO MASSACHUSETTS

THE 87th CONGRESS -- CRISIS AND RESPONSE

The 87th Congress has met the test of a year of crises throughout the world. It took expeditious and emphatic action to guarantee the security of the nation from external threat. But on the domestic front many problems remain unfaced.

Cuba, Laos, the Congo, Berlin, the resumption of nuclear testing, the sudden death of the Secretary-General of the United Nations ---these crises have burst upon a troubled world to produce a chain reaction of uncertainty and turmoil.

The American people are united in their desire to meet the challenge, and the Congress has labored with dedication and achievement to provide some of the answers to the most pressing problems.

As world tension has continued to mount, our nation's leaders--the President, we who serve you in Congress, our Ambassadors abroad, and other American officials--have felt the heavy pressures of the times. On questions of national security, of adequate funds for our armed forces, of helpful military and economic aid for our allies, we have achieved the same kind of bipartisan unanimity that produced our successful effort in World War II.

Serving the people of Massachusetts and the nation as a senior member of both the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, I have been close to the vital decisions made in the field of national security and equally close to their impact upon Federal finances.

National security and foreign aid expenditures are up more than $4 billion over the last fiscal year, a heavy burden not yet financed by increased tax levies. Yet it is the price of survival.

As a rich and strong nation, the deficit caused by national defense spending can be borne for a short while, but it points up the need to establish priorities among our many new and continuing domestic programs and demands that we establish a high priority for the establishment of a sound economy. Inflation, which weakens the confidence of other nations in the dollar and causes an outflow of our nation's gold reserves, can become an insidious foe.

Civilian expenditures will run more than $2 billion more in fiscal year 1962 than they did in 1961 and the Budget Director admits that in FY '62 the deficit will be $5.3 billion. Others have predicted it may run up to $8 billion.

New programs in space and medical research, and new and increased programs to improve the condition of our cities and our depressed areas were enacted this year. On the other hand, the President's major recommendation for increased Federal revenues--the postal rate increase--was reported in the House, but debate postponed until next year. Tax reform legislation was also put off. This conduct set the domestic tone of the Congress.

Other enactments have indicated the concern of this Congress for the individual--improvements in the Social Security law, the passage of the increased minimum wage from $1 to $1.15 and then to $1.25 in 1963, and the extension of unemployment benefits. I supported these programs, with reservations in some cases, as I believe they are basic to our society and they provide for greater equality both between individuals and regions of our country.

Considerable work remains for the 87th Congress next year--aid for school construction; revision of anachronistic immigration laws; a voluntary program of medical care for the aged; and coordinated plans which would place our agriculture and transportation systems on a sound footing.

Of great importance will be tax revisions--increases to match the increased Federal budget and improved investment and savings incentives. The new level of Federal activity will be difficult for our economy to finance without a tax overhaul.

In 1962 a discerning Congress must establish the priorities between our domestic economy, our programs for social advancement and the demands of the international situation. The people of the U. S. will insist that their Congress evaluate the necessary, the urgent, and the merely desirable, and measure the sacrifice required by each, or in the confusion we will lose sight of the goals of democracy.

It is a job which the second session of the 87th Congress can and must undertake.

Leverett Saltonstall
United States Senator
